

Electronic nematicity in superconducting LAO/KTO

Jie Wu

Westlake University

We've systematically studied the anisotropic transport in interface superconducting LAO/KTO(111) and discovered substantial nematicity in its superconducting fluctuation and anomalous metal/insulator state. This may be related to electronic phase separation or stripe phase at the interface.